About the International Center of Photography

The International Center of Photography (ICP) is the world's leading institution dedicated to photography and visual culture. Cornell Capa founded ICP in 1974 to champion "concerned photography"— socially and politically minded images that can educate and change the world. Through our exhibitions, education programs, community outreach, and public programs, ICP offers an open forum for dialogue about the power of the image.

ICP has presented more than 700 solo and group exhibitions that have featured the work of some 3,000 photographers and other artists. It has offered thousands of classes and workshops that have enriched tens of thousands of students. The center also actively collects; ICP's holdings include more than 200,000 original prints, negatives, and objects that span the history of photography.

ICP brings together photographers, artists, students, and scholars to create and interpret the realm of the image. Here, members of this unique community are encouraged to explore photography and visual culture as mediums of empowerment and as catalysts for wide-reaching social change.

ICP's website and social media channels serve more than 1 million individual users in some 200 countries worldwide.

Land Acknowledgement

The International Center of Photography is on the island known as Mannahatta (Manhattan) in Lenapehoking, the homeland of the Lenape people. ICP pays respect to the original stewards of this land, Lenape and other Indigenous peoples, and is committed to supporting the inter-tribal Native American, First Nations, and Indigenous communities that continue to thrive in New York City. This acknowledgment demonstrates a commitment to beginning the process of dismantling the ongoing legacies of settler colonialism through our exhibitions, classes, and programming.

Statement of Accessibility and Inclusion

ICP is committed to offering space and programs that are accessible to all audiences. We believe that diversity, equity, and inclusion are values that are integral to offering an open forum for dialogue around photography and visual culture that is open to all. Through this lens, we hope to engage, educate, and inspire our visitors, students, and community at large.

Move to Essex Crossing

In January 2020, ICP opened its new home on the Lower East Side, becoming the cultural anchor of Essex Crossing, one of the most highly anticipated and expansive mixed-use developments in New York City. ICP's new location features 40,000 square feet of exhibition, education, and administration space, including galleries, media labs, classrooms, darkrooms, an equipment room, and shooting studios, as well as public event spaces.

Moving to Essex is the culmination of 20 years of planning and initiates an exciting new era for ICP, reuniting our school and museum and creating an engaging space for museumgoers, ICP members, students, and the Lower East Side community. The neighborhood's history as a center of immigration and documentary and creative work-making align with ICP's place as a center for our community to explore photography and visual culture as mediums of empowerment and catalysts for social change.

Exhibitions

ICP's exhibitions attract a diverse audience comprising more than 60,000 annual visitors, including 7,000 students, through tour programs and other outreach efforts. More than 25 percent of visitors reside outside New York State, and another 20 percent live outside the United States.

ICP hosts six to 10 exhibitions annually. These widely acclaimed, diverse shows cover the entire spectrum of the medium—from early daguerreotypes, documentary images, and contemporary fashion photography to multimedia installations that employ both traditional and digital techniques—and consistently attract significant recognition in the field. ICP additionally exhibits work by the graduating cohort of One-Year Certificate and other academic programs, bringing the work of the next generation to the wider public.

Education

ICP operates one of the world's most extensive photography education programs—offering more than 700 courses throughout the year and serving more than 3,500 students annually. The ICP's school includes two full-time One-Year Certificate programs in Creative Practices and Documentary Practice and Visual Journalism. More than 50 percent of our full-time students are internationally based, from Europe, South America, Asia, Africa, Oceania, and the Middle East. ICP also offers teen classes, and other resources for educators.

Community Programs

ICP's Community Programs include Teen Academy and Community Partnerships, which serve over 1,000 young people from across the tri-state area every year by developing their knowledge of photography, critical thinking, writing, and public speaking. Classes take place onsite, online, and at community-based organizations in NYC neighborhoods.

Building upon ICP's commitment to access, diversity, and inclusion, programming and resources are offered free of charge or with significant need-based scholarships.

Public Programs

ICP's public programs generate stimulating public dialogues between photographic and visual culture communities, academics, and collaborative partners from a range of creative and community-based organizations. They explore the complex challenges facing our world, increasingly informed by the dynamic impact of visual culture and media. Programming includes artist talks, panel discussions, screenings, book signings, and performances.

Library and Publications

ICP's library comprises over 20,000 books and videos, more than 2,500 artist files, and 50 current periodical titles. ICP publications include award-winning exhibition catalogues; exhibition brochures; and SHIFT, a publication of work by ICP's full-time students.
