International Center of Photography Announces New Share-Space Agreement with the Camera Club of New York

New York, NY (July 2, 2014) — The International Center of Photography (ICP) announces a new share-space agreement with the Camera Club of New York (CCNY). Effective immediately, current and future members of CCNY's Darkroom Residency Program will have the opportunity to use ICP's darkrooms, seven days a week.

"ICP is thrilled to welcome the CCNY members into our community of photographers and share with them our world class facilities," said Phillip Block, Deputy Director for Programs & Director of Education at ICP. "For over 40 years, ICP has embraced practitioners of all styles and genres, and provided them with not only state of the art digital, multi-media and analogue imaging facilities but also offered them a place to engage in conversation about the photographic medium in all its facets. It is a great privilege to join in partnership with the CCNY community and we look forward to a fruitful and productive relationship."

The darkrooms are just one part of the facilities available to students, faculty, and staff at ICP, which include digital labs and black-and-white and color analog printing.

About ICP

The International Center of Photography (ICP) is the world's leading institution dedicated to the practice and understanding of photography and the reproduced image in all its forms. Through our exhibitions, educational programs, and community outreach, we offer an open forum for dialogue about the role images play in our culture. Since our founding, we have presented more than 700 exhibitions and offered thousands of classes, providing instruction at every level. ICP is a center where photographers and artists, students and scholars can create and interpret the world of the image within our comprehensive educational and archival facilities. Visit www.icp.org for more information.
